

ABSTRACT

An automated decorating system includes plural decorers, each having a frame formed as a two-pronged fork. The space between the prongs receives a part to be decorated. Each of the decorers is in a chamber having only one loading door. The plural decorers are within the operating radius of a loading robot which loads the part to be decorated through a single face of the decorer into the space between the prongs.